

THE DREAMER CREED

If you're fighting for your dreams, you always need to have your mind on your side. Of course, we're all human and no one is completely immune to fear, self-doubt, and criticism. Every now and then we're all bound to get a little too caught up in our negative self-talk when we're facing new challenges.

But constantly worrying about "what might happen" and getting caught up in imagined fears can be a major time suck and a dangerous distraction. That's why I decided to write the Dreamer Creed to help you stay focused on what matters most—taking action on your dreams (and it's a little inspired by the song Imagine, by John Lennon.)

So, whenever the critics throw some variation of the same old fears in your face and try to paralyze you with worry, just remember that they're only telling one side of an argument. Let this creed remind you that there's a whole other side of the discussion that they're missing.

Overall, the Dreamer Creed is for those who have big dreams and even bigger (internal/external) critics. I hope this can get your courage and confidence back on track when fear and doubt get in your way.

♥ Melissa Ng

www.lumecluster.com

wonderlands for the entrepreneurial mind

P.S. Want more Dreamer Creed inspiration? Read the entire article here.

Stay in touch: Twitter | Facebook | Instagram

↓ CLICK TO DOWNLOAD WALLPAPER ↓

WIDESCREEN
ORANGE
BLUE

FULLSCREEN
ORANGE
BLUE